this book is the largest and most complete book ever written about trumpet playing 503 pages hardbound cloth 8 5 x 11 x 1 75 in 369 photos 89 illustrations dozens of music examples david hickman is considered one of the world's finest trumpet pedagogues with 35 years of university teaching a must for all serious players and teachers it is rare to read a poet so entirely dedicated to the idea no to the feeling of the world as logos of the world made tangible motile and breathing fred chappell author of midquest from the foreword david hickman is a great poet of the spiritual soul he has an astounding capacity to listen and hear the voice of dark luminosity that grounds existence things are said in this volume that i have tried for decades to say and have failed this book brings comfort because it speaks truth raw and beautiful it finds hope in the darkest places struggles with the deepest of human conflicts and finds poignant delicacy where you would not expect it robert sardello author of love and the world reading what the silence says one feels both welcome guest and privileged company to witness words morphing into revelatory tropes details blooming into the absolute hickman speaks not only of the commonplace but also of those hard to see walls it is our place as humans to negotiate these poems challenge the western nucleus of assumptions that define our lives with a reckoning that is playful yet at the same time dead serious stephen roberts author of a space within a space this book includes information about more than seven thousand black people who lived in clark county kentucky before 1865 part one is a relatively brief set of narrative chapters about several individuals part two is a compendium of information drawn mainly from probate military vital and census records gone but not forgotten refers to the author s maternal lineage the ankrom family she traveled far and wide to courthouses cemeteries and libraries gathering family information this book goes through the tenth generation of the ankrom family going back into the 1700 s when richard and elizabeth ankrom were living in frederick county maryland in faith and fraternity laura branch provides the first sustained comparative analysis of london s livery companies during the reformation focussing on the grocers and the drapers this book challenges the view that merchants were zealous early protestants and that the companies to which they belonged adapted to the reformation by secularising their ethos rather the rhetoric of christianity particularly appeals to brotherly love punctuated the language of corporate governance throughout the century and helped the liveries retain a spiritual culture these institutions comprised a spectrum of religious identities yet members managed to coexist relatively peacefully in this way the liveries help us to understand better how the transition from a catholic to a protestant society was negotiated
